In FY 2002, several initiatives underscore the Justice of the Peace Court's efforts to provide better services and to expedite case dispositions, including:

Pilot Project Providing Legal Representation at Court 20: A highlight of FY 2002 was the initiation of the federally-funded pilot project to provide attorney general and public defender representation at J.P. Court 20 in Wilmington. Through this project, the Attorney General, Public Defender and the Court work collaboratively at Court 20 to resolve cases at the earliest possible opportunity. The grant provides two deputies attorney general, two public defenders, and support personnel, to provide representation at pre-trial proceedings and trials at Court 20, Monday – Friday from 8 a.m. – 4 p.m. Benefits brought by the project to the victims and defendants include early resolution of cases (often at the initial court appearance), early access to victim's services, and access to legal services for both victims and defendants at Court 20. Preliminary statistics indicate that the project has reduced the transfer rate (the percentage of cases which could be heard in the Justice of the Peace Court but which are transferred to the Court of Common Pleas by the defendant) from 46% before the project went into effect to 25% (including cases pending at Court 20). These promising initial results should help reduce backlogs at the Court of Common Pleas, pre-trial detention and the number of capiases issued for defendants failing to appear for trial at a later date.

Chief Magistrate Patricia Walther Griffin

Truancy Court: The Justice of the Peace Court's statewide Truancy Court has developed into a multifaceted program involving an extensive network of social service and treatment agencies that provide assistance to families with truancy problems. Performance indicators for the Truancy Court in 2001-2002 show promising results:

• 56% of the cases closed in 2001-2002 achieved full compliance with the Truancy Court (returned to school regularly), representing a significant improvement from the previous school year's compliance rate of 44%.

- Preliminary statistics also demonstrate the need to target younger truants to enhance success the compliance rate is close to 100% when the truant student is less than 11 years old.
- The earlier the intervention, the better the outcome: truant students who achieved full compliance averaged 23 days of unexcused absences at the time of filing, while non-compliant truants averaged a substantially higher number of days (34) for the same period.
- 95% of the truant students who achieved full compliance with Truancy Court in 2001-2002 completed the school year.

FY 2002 was the first year of a highly successful federally-funded joint program with the Truancy Court and the Boys and Girls Club in Kent County intended to encourage the difficult-to-motivate teenage truants to return to school. The program includes a morning attendance program, after-school work readiness and life skills program, and paid part-time employment for teenage truants. It was recognized as the 2002 Program of the Year by the Kent County Interagency Council for its outstanding results.

Statewide Videophone Court: A statewide Justice of the Peace Videophone Court was established at J.P. Court No.2 in Rehoboth on January 2, 2002. Conducting proceedings by videophone enables court users, such as the police, to obtain warrants and have arraignments conducted, without they or the defendants physically appearing in court, thereby saving time. The new Videophone Court has provided substantial benefits to the criminal justice community because it efficiently manages and distributes the J.P. Court's statewide videophone workload during its hours of operation, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. until midnight. In a recent survey of police officers using the new Videophone Court, 94% of those responding said that the amount of time they spent on videophone proceedings has been reduced by the Videophone Court and 86% of respondents indicated that they were very pleased with the service they received. Survey responses included comments such as "[I was] surprised how fast the process [with Videophone Court] took" and "The Statewide Videophone Court keeps officers available and on patrol like we are supposed to be." The benefits of the new court were also highlighted in a study by the Criminal Justice Council, which indicated that the Videophone Court would enable the police to save over $600,000 per year in personnel costs. The Statewide Videophone Court initiative exemplifies the Justice of the Peace Court's efforts to redistribute existing resources to enhance the speed and efficiency of the services its provides to its videophone customers.

Employee Recognition: In FY 2002, the Justice of the Peace Court COTS team, including Larry Sipple (Management Analyst III), Lyn Arnold (Management Analyst II), Charlotte Walsh (Judicial Case Processor Supervisor), Debbie Cahall (Judicial Operations Manager), Debbie Long (Judicial Operations Manager), Sheila Taylor (Judicial Case Processor Supervisor), and Vanessa Marlowe (Judicial Case Processor Supervisor), were recognized as the Justice of the Peace Court Employees of the Year for 2001 for their outstanding work related to the Judiciary's COTS initiative to select and acquire a new case management system for all of the courts. We are also proud of Judge Rosalind Toulson, who received the 2002 Chief Justice's Award for Outstanding Judicial Service in the Justice of the Peace Court for her tireless efforts and leadership with regard to the Truancy Court in New Castle County and her exceptional skills, including her treatment of every litigant, witness and colleague with dignity, respect and understanding.

Legal Authorization

The Justice of the Peace Court is authorized by the Constitution of Delaware, Article IV, Section 1.

Court History

As early as the 1600s, justices of the peace were commissioned to handle minor civil and criminal cases. Along with a host of other duties, the administering of local government in the 17th and 18th Centuries on behalf of the English Crown was a primary duty of the justices of the peace. With the adoption of the State Constitution of 1792, the justices of the peace were stripped of their general administrative duties leaving them with minor civil and criminal jurisdiction. During the period 1792 through 1964, the justices of the peace were compensated entirely by the costs and fees accessed and collected for the performance of their legal duties.

Legal Jurisdiction

The Justice of the Peace Court has jurisdiction over civil cases in which the amount in controversy is not greater than $15,000. This increased from $5,000 in January 1995. Justice of the Peace Court is authorized to hear certain misdemeanors and most motor vehicle cases (excluding felonies) and may act as committing magistrates for all crimes. Appeals may be taken to the Court of Common Pleas effective January 1995. In the past, these appeals were taken to the Superior Court. The subject matter jurisdiction of the Justice of the Peace Courts is shared with the Court of Common Pleas, except for summary possession actions.

The Court's jurisdiction was increased on May 1, 1998, to include filings in the city of Wilmington as a result of the Municipal Court merger.

Geographic Organization

The jurisdiction of the Court is statewide and sessions are held throughout the State. Of the 19 courts currently operating, eight are in New Castle County, four are in Kent County and seven are in Sussex County. The Voluntary Assessment Center, which handles mail-in fines, is located in Dover.

Justice of the Peace

The Delaware Code authorizes a maximum of 58 justices of the peace. The maximum number of justices of the peace permitted in each county is 29 in New Castle County, 12 in Kent County and 17 in Sussex County. All justices of the peace are nominated by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate for terms of four years. A justice of the peace must be at least 21 years of age and a resident of the state of Delaware and the county in which the justice of the peace serves. In addition to the 58 justices of the peace, the Governor nominates a chief magistrate, subject to Senate confirmation.

Support Personnel

An administrator, two operations managers, an administrative officer, and a fiscal administrative officer help the chief magistrate direct the Justice of the Peace Court on a daily basis. The State provides clerks of the court, constables, and other personnel for the Court.
